On 9 June 1951, at 11:30 a.m., aircraft parked in front of the hangars at Staaken airfield included 30 single-engine ground attack aircraft with white tips on their rudder assemblies, 2 single-engine high-wing monoplanes, and 1 biplane. The ground attack planes were parked in three rows of ten planes each. A twin-engine transport similar to the Douglas, came from the west and landed at the field. The plane had a door on its right side. *

25X1A # [REDACTED] Comment. The airfield is still occupied by a ground attack regiment and an air transport squadron. The high-wing monoplanes probably are Yak-11s and belong to the air transport squadron. The twin-engine plane is an LI-2.
